

ENGLISH
36

146828-1001

J. Hammond

"First Passion"

song

The first Passion

A favorite Song

Composed by J. Hammond

Royal Academy of Music
Library

Entered at Stationer's Hall.

Price 6^d

Printed by Longman and Broderip N^o 26 Cheapside and N^o 13 Hay Market.

How happy the feason of Childhood appears! Those hours of con -

- tentment, those smooth gliding years, those hours of contentment, those smooth gliding years; When the heart knows no forrow, disturb'd by no guile, and the Tear, if it trickles, is caught by a smile, and the Tear if it trickles is caught by a

2

Farewell to that peace, which indifference bestows,
 Love pierces my bosom, and wounds my repose;
 My passion to stifle, I'm forc'd to deceive,
 But tho' smiles mask my sorrows, they cannot relieve.

For the German Flute or Guitar

How happy the season of Childhood appears! Those hours of contentment, those smooth gliding years, those hours of contentment, those smooth gliding years, When the heart knows no sorrow, disturb'd by no guile, and the Tear, if it trickles, is caught by a Smile, and the Tear if it trickles is caught by a Smile.

